"WONDERMENT"

Starting Over

During the first eighteen years of our lives, most of our thought-life was held captive by our parents, the educational institution, sports and most likely a religion. One must begin the process of asking how much value was added to our understanding regarding the purpose of existence and the Creators' expectations during that time period.

As you enter your studies, you will begin to experience something that most likely you rarely encountered during your first tour of education, wonderment. When you slowly step back and begin to deeply analyze the vast and complex realities of the larger picture, the planet, its environments and the universe, those questions you had as a small child of wonderment, will begin to return. Just remember, this will take time.

The video attached to this section will take you on a journey back in time and provide the educational reality of what occurred to us who were wisked through the institution of education. Each one of us spent roughly 25,000 hours sitting in a classroom , playing sports and doing homework. Almost none of that time was spent learning who the Creaor is and what He expects of us. Right now is the moment to give that time back to Hashem.
